I'm Ethan; a thirty-seven year old software developer living in PDX.

I didn't go to college to become a professional 3D artist, rigger, animator, or any one specific thing. I learned all of these skills as a result of a long career "filling in the holes" in various projects until before I knew it, I was not only doing them for a living, but teaching actual professionals how. As a result, I've worked successfully over the last sixteen-years in a vast array of positions. Everything from 3D Generalist, Creative Director, Network Administrator, Environment Artist, Chief Technical Officer, Consultant, QA lead and about twenty other titles over the years. Eventually people started calling me a "Technical Artist" and since then that's what I've referred to myself as.

I function equally well as an employee, a subordinate, or a slavedriving boss.

If you'd like to pay me to perform any of these duties for you, what I offer is essentially this;

Your goals become my goals. Your enemies become my enemies.

Whatever *it* is, we'll get it done, together as a team.

My name is Ethan Casner.

I love.

I slay,

and I am content.
